TOPICS

You trained to practice medicine. But who trained you to lead the Medical Staff?

Credentialing decisions. Privileging questions. Peer review challenges. Behavior and health concerns. As a Medical Staff leader, you're expected to navigate some of the most complex – and consequential – issues in healthcare. Yet when it comes to dealing with these issues with your colleagues, it certainly isn't something covered in medical school or residency. There's too much at stake to figure it out as you go.

At The Complete Course for Medical Staff Leaders, LeeAnne Mitchell, Rachel Remaley, and Hala Mouzaffar turn 45+ years of combined legal and consulting experience into practical strategies you can put to work immediately. Through real-world case studies and engaging scenarios, you'll learn how to approach difficult situations, make sound decisions, and lead with greater clarity and confidence.

Don't just learn on the job. Learn from the people who have spent decades helping Medical Staff leaders handle the job's toughest challenges.
